

GRANTS FOR THE FIRST YEAR OF POSTGRADUATE STUDIES

The Yrjö Jahnsson Foundation is prepared to grant 10 full year grants of 25 000 euros to first year postgraduate students of economics who begin their postgraduate studies in fall 2023 or spring 2024. The grants are intended for full-time postgraduate studies. Those who receive the grant may also apply for an extension grant in the spring of 2024 for their second year of postgraduate studies. These extension grants are granted to those who perform best in their studies.

In stage 1 of the application process (in autumn 2022), economics faculties applied to reserve a quota (a certain number) of grants for their beginning postgraduate students. It is possible to split one 25 000 euro grant in half to accommodate two students if both students are able to secure funding for the rest of their first year of postgraduate studies from other sources. Here are the instructions for stage 2 of the grant application process.

Instructions for economics units

1. Once being notified of the grant quota reserved for them, each unit is to name recipient candidates (within their quota) for the personal grant from among their beginning postgraduate students. The candidates must be students who are beginning their postgraduate studies in fall 2023 or spring 2024. The person responsible for drafting the unit's application must send a list of the unit's candidates with a brief justification for each choice to the Foundation via email (toimisto@yjs.fi) by 5 May 2023. If a unit suggests splitting a grant between two students, the sent information must specify which two students are to split the grant.
2. The named candidates apply for the grant from the Foundation at the suggestion of their own unit between 8–19 May 2023. Then the Foundation will make the final decisions on grant recipients. The units must let their candidates know whether they are candidates for the full grant or a half grant. Only candidates named by the units may apply for grants in the second stage of the application process. The Foundation uses the candidates submitted by the units as the starting point, but final decisions on grant recipients are made according to the Foundation's regular grant conditions and criteria.
